

What can we expect in Pet Vets? (Ages 13-15)

Has your child expressed an interest in working with animals? Are they starting to explore the idea of becoming a veterinarian? Pet Vets at the Arizona Humane Society is a great place to get started!

This science-based program focuses on the building blocks of veterinary science and allows young teens to test out the realities of this career option. Students will have the option to view live surgeries in our veterinary clinic and will acquire hands-on experience during daily specimen dissections as they study animal anatomy and physiology. Additionally, students will be introduced to pet first aid, CPR, and a variety of experiments in addition to hands-on interaction with animals each day. This science-centric program is sure to provide teens with a real view of what a career in animal medicine will bring!
